How do you find a good wedding photographer? I'm looking to find a photographer for my best friend's wedding later this year. I can see from her blog she's absolutely in love with the photographer she has now and they have some great photos from her wedding.

I'm thinking if I have the initial outlay maybe I can find someone a little more reliable. Anyway here's my question. I noticed that most of the photographers I see have a photo from their website that is the very same photo taken for the couple on their wedding day. Should I be looking for something completely different? Like a particular style of photo or subjects? I think that is just part of the process of finding the right photographer - everyone does it, even the one she has now. It's a good thing because she has gone from one who chose the photographer and who decided the style to one who is happy with the results they are getting now and the style they are getting is what she wants. Every photographer is different so it really depends on what you are looking for. I always send a link to my website for my wedding/portraits but my web site is very basic. I don't have any wedding portraits to post so hopefully she gets great photos. I would never choose a photographer based solely on a website. You need to view a portfolio, talk to them and get a feel for them. I was in love with a photographer at my cousin's wedding but he decided to work with another person so I didn't end up using him. I did however see a photographer on another wedding that I liked and used him. Most people should be able to explain what they do. A portfolio of at least one recent wedding that is fairly recent would help a lot. If not, see if you can do a call together sometime to have a look at their work in person. This is what I did with my first photographer. Thank you both - I get the feeling from talking to Addon that customizes new tabs in the browser You may know this add-on from the name of its creator, a man named Sebastien Perot. The software extension was developed with the aim of making opening a new tab less tedious. You just have to click the button in the toolbar to open it. Within seconds, you will see a whole list of options. The first thing you will notice is that Start! 2 for Firefox provides you with a collection of background images available in the toolbar. What you will also notice is that the browser provides a collection of quick and easy shortcuts to open your bookmarks and installed apps.

However, it is possible to customize that window in a variety of ways to make it look and behave more to your liking. For instance, you could replace the background image with your own. That could be done by clicking on the Browse button, choosing an image, and then clicking Save. This list of options is infinite. You can even change the shortcuts themselves so that they work as you like. ## Start! 2 For Chrome

Addon that customizes new tabs in the browser One of the features that will be of interest to many users is related to the software utility's ability to change the tab's background using Flickr resources, with the possibility of indicating the interval at which you want to be shown a new image. Hourly, daily, weekly, and monthly switches can be enabled. The alternative is to provide a URL for a specific picture you like. Shows your bookmarks and some popular apps Other than that, what Start! 2 can do is show you your bookmarks in an intuitive environment, with the icons of your websites being shown right within the new tab. For that, you just have to add new bookmarks as you do under normal circumstances, with the tab automatically refreshing them as well. Managing your bookmarks with the help of the add-on is also possible in case you want to make any adjustments. Besides your own list of URLs, the browser extension shows the Chrome Web Apps, namely Gmail, Google Sheets, YouTube, Google Drive, Google Docs, and Google Slides.
